FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

MEDIAMOUNTS' ACQUIRED BY COMPX TO FOCUS ON POINT-OF-CARE COMPUTER MOUNTING PRODUCTS

Cambridge, Ontario. – July 29, 2011 – As every hospital and healthcare provider worldwide looks to plan for and implement electronic medical records at the point of care, Mediamounts has taken a significant leap forward in meeting the demand as a result of its merger with CompX Waterloo.

The US Federal Governments decision to invest billions of dollars in the “meaningful use” of health IT, through the American Recovery and Reinvestment Act (ARRA) financially incents Electronic Health Record (EHR) early adopters and penalizes those who don't comply by 2015. The opportunity to deliver products that properly and professionally integrate technology into the Healthcare environment has never seen such momentum.

“We re-focused in 2007 directing our complete attention to designing and developing the world's best wall mounting products to integrate computers into Healthcare Environments” said Simon Fallows, Founder and President of Mediamounts. “The introduction of our Fluid WorkCenter in 2008 has resulted in over 10,000 units deployed in a few hundred Hospitals. CompX brings the production and expanded distribution channel required to support our growth as we position ourselves to be the market leader in the Healthcare IT mounting space.”

Mediamounts' immediate goal is to ensure the high level of support it provides to its customers and sales representatives is met or exceeded. Our objective will be to introduce new and innovative products that will facilitate and enable positive change in how healthcare IT workflow is managed at the patient bedside.

“Building on CompX already strong customer service promise and quality assurance processes, the Mediamounts product offering broadens our portfolio of adjustable technology mounting products to include best in class products specifically designed for the healthcare market” said Corey Boland, President, CompX Waterloo.

“On behalf of the management team and staff at Mediamounts we look forward to exceeding you're expectations in the months and years to come”, Simon Fallows.
